Division Headquarters

Camp Funston was first opened at the start of World War I. It was named for General Frederick Funston, a Kansas soldier and hero of the Spanish-American War. Camp Funston was first under the command of Major General Leonard Wood who trained several divisions for combat in France. The camp was rebuilt in 1940 as a training area sending men who trained here to all parts of the globe. At present the 10th Infantry Division (retaining the history, combat honors, and famous powder-keg patch of the Tenth Mountain Division) is active as a training division.

The Funston Monument erected to the memory of the men who trained at Camp Funston during the "Great War" in 1917-1919.

Major General Thomas L. Harrold

Thomas Leonard Harrold was born at San Diego, California, June 21, 1902. He was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy on June 12, 1925, as a second lieutenant of Cavalry in the Regular Army and assigned to Fort Bliss, Texas as a troop officer with the Seventh Cavalry.

In September 1929 General Harrold became a student at the Cavalry School, Fort Riley, Kansas, completing the course in June, 1930. He then spent two years at Fort Stotsenburg, Pampagna, Philippine Islands as troop officer and later as commanding officer of the 48th Motor Transport Company and the 34th and 35th Pack Trains, all a part of the 25th Cavalry.

In December 1932 he became an instructor in the Department of Drawing at the U. S. Military Academy, where he served for the next six years. In August of 1938 he was assigned to the 11th Cavalry at the Presidio of Monterey, California, as S-4 and later commanding officer, Headquarters and Service Troops. He later accompanied the 11th Cavalry to Camp Lockett, California.

In February 1942 he was made regional executive officer, 2nd Cavalry Division, Phoenix, Arizona and in July was assigned to command the 52nd Armored Division at Fort Riley, Kansas. In December 1943 he was made Combat Commander "A" of the 9th Armored Division at Camp Polk, La.

In August of 1944 he accompanied the 9th Division to the European Theatre of Operations. He commanded this Combat Command (A of the 9th Armored Division) in Luxembourg when the Germans started their counter offensive on December 1944 and held the northern shoulder of the American line south of the break-through until relieved by elements of the 6th Armored Division on December 26, 1944. The command rejoined the 9th Armored Division and assisted in the drive across the Rhine Plains, the capture of the Remagen Bridge and in the encirclement of Leipzig. The command was later attached to the 1st Infantry Division and at the end of the war was in Carlsbad. The Division was then assigned to occupation duties in northern Bavaria near Bayreuth, Coburg and Hof, Germany.

General Harrold remained with the 9th Armored Division throughout its action in the European Theatre and returned to the United States as its Commanding General in October 1945. When the Division was deactivated at Camp Patrick Henry, Virginia, he was assigned to command the School Troops at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

In May 1946 General Harrold returned to Europe to command the 3rd Brigade in the newly-activated U. S. Constabulary and became director of the Civil Affairs Division of the European Command in June 1947. In May 1949 he returned to the United States to become assistant commandant of the Armored School at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

In February, 1951, he went to the Far East Command and in March became deputy commanding general of the I Corps in Korea. He assumed command of the 1st Cavalry Division in July and in December moved with it to Hokkaido, Japan. He served as commander of the Japan Logistical Command from July to October, 1952 and prior to returning to the United States served as acting deputy commander of the AFPE, and later commanding general of the XVI Corps in Japan.

He returned to the United States late in 1952 and assumed command of the 10th Infantry Division, Fort Riley, Kansas on 26 January 1953.

General Harrold has been awarded the Legion of Merit, Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters and the Army Commendation Ribbon. His foreign decorations include the French Chevalier de Legion d' Honneur and croix de Guerre avec Palme and the Czechoslovakian War Cross.

HISTORY of the 10th INFANTRY DIVISION

The 10th Infantry Division today is an Army division in the United States whose mission is to effect a smooth transition from civilian to Army life and produce basically trained soldiers — a mission that involves the reception, processing, classification, training and shipment of all men newly enlisted in the Army.

The 10th Division was first activated at Camp Funston in 1918, when it trained men for combat in World War I. Deactivated in 1919 following the Armistice, it remained inactive until 1943.

Reformed at Camp Hale, Colorado, and designated as Mountain Infantry, the 10th Division became one of the best known combat organizations of World War II in its brief two year history. The division is famed for its 19 day drive from the Apennines to the Alps in Northern Italy, one of the most decisive campaigns of the war in Europe.

In August, 1948, 10th Division was activated for a third time, this time at its first home, Camp Funston. This company is one of the many companies trained by 10th Division since that time.

The men whose pictures appear in this volume will travel throughout the world when they leave Camp Funston. They will serve the Army and this nation in many ways and in many countries. It has been the aim of 10th Division to equip them well for whatever assignment they may receive.

To these men, we cadremen who trained them wish the best of luck and adventure. We hope they will retain the spirit of 10th Division wherever they may go, and, in every action, demonstrate their respect for the traditions of this organization.

Brigadier General

John L. Whitelaw

General Whitelaw began his military career in 1919 upon graduation from the U. S. Military Academy as a second lieutenant. After graduation until 1920 he attended the Coast Artillery School, later being assigned to the 16th Infantry Division at Camp Dix. His later assignments were Aide-de-Camp to Maj. Gen. William S. Graves, Commanding General of the 1st Infantry Division, the 6th Corps Area, Panama Canal Department; Company officer with the 33rd Infantry; Student of the Infantry School; Company Commander and Battalion Staff officer with the 29th Infantry; English instructor at the U. S. Military Academy; attended the Command and General Staff School; Regimental S-3 with the 33rd Infantry; Staff officer with the Chief of Infantry in Washington, D. C.; General Staff of Army Ground Forces; Assistant Division Commander of the 17th Airborne Division; Deputy Chief of Staff, Berlin District; Professor of Military Science and Tactics at Michigan State College; Chief of Staff, TRUST and Deputy Commanding General, TRUST, and Director General of Civil Affairs, AMG, British U. S. Zone, Free Territory of Trieste.

During World War II General Whitelaw served with the 17th Airborne Division taking part in the Ardennes, Rhineland and Central Europe campaigns.

His decorations include the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star, Purple Heart and Army Commendation Ribbon.

In August of 1952 General Whitelaw reported to the 10th Infantry Division as Assistant Division Commander.

The 10th Division Patch

THE CROSSED bayonets of the 10th Infantry Division patch are a warning of the consequences awaiting him who dares to tamper with the powderkeg they guard. Placed in saltire to form the Roman numeral X, they designate the number of the division.

The powderkeg is blue, the Infantry's color, edged in white to form with the red bayonets, a design based on the national colors.

The COMBAT INFANTRYMAN BADGE

Proudly worn by combat infantrymen since the outbreak of World War II, the Combat Infantryman Badge is authorized to be awarded to officers or enlisted men, or warrant officers with an infantry MOS, who have, subsequent to 6 December 1941, satisfactorily performed duty while assigned or attached as a member of an infantry unit of regimental or smaller size during any period such unit was engaged in active ground combat. Awards of this badge cannot be made to general officers or to members of headquarters or headquarters companies of units larger in size than regiments. Battle participation credit alone is not sufficient; the unit must have been in active ground combat with the enemy during the Period.

One Combat Infantryman Badge is authorized to be awarded to each individual for each separate war in which the prescribed requirements have been met.

The first award of the badge is a polished musket on a rectangular blue background seven-sixteenths of an inch in height and three inches in length in front of an oak wreath of oxidized silver. Each silver star, centered at the top of the badge between the points of the oak wreath, indicates an additional award of the badge.

BASIC!

On The R. I. C.

Much time is spent on the R.I.C. before going on the range for firing. Such things as learning the trigger squeeze, assuming the proper positions, how to take the positions rapidly, how to reload and practice in the first, second, and third sustained fire exercises are all a must.

PHYSICAL TRAINING

Many hours are spent taking part in the Physical fitness program of the 10th Infantry Division.

Firing for Record on National

Dismounted Drill

Transition Firing

OBJECTIVE: To instruct in the fundamentals of precision rifle fire with the use of the battle sight, firing in all of the various positions and using many barriers for simulated cover.

IMMUNIZATION

Pvt. Elroy A. Anderson receives one of the many "shots" taken in Basic training.

Machine Gun Instruction

Prior to going on the range several hours of instruction is given on the Machine gun. Here the sighting, aiming, mounting, etc. are learned. Also the meaning of "ready on the right---ready on the left---ready on the firing line" is stressed.

Firing Rifle Grenades

Here the soldier becomes familiar with the firing of training practice and anti-tank explosive grenades, firing at selected targets from the three firing positions.

ROCKET LAUNCHER

BAYONET TRAINING

Close Combat Weapon-----

OBJECTIVE: To teach the soldier the will to close with and destroy the enemy in hand to hand combat. Also to teach the positions and movements.

Chow in the field

Machine Gun Firing

The firing gives the individual soldier the sufficient range practice to enable him to manipulate, operate and fire the Machine Gun with a reasonable degree of accuracy.

Fort

Fort Riley was established in 1852 by Major E. A. Ogden at a place originally called Camp Center because of its location at the geographical center of the state. The fort is named after Major General Bennett Riley who served with distinction in the Mexican War. The fort is one of the best preserved in the area and population and includes Marshall Air Force Base, which is located on the east side of the fort.
